

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A business model algorithm for creating a second " original " document of an original document from a first location to a second location by means of transmitting an electronic image of said document and printing the same at the second location, verifying the accuracy of the transmitted image, validating the transmitted ad printed copy and destroying the original document at the first location, and scanning, verifying, printing, comparing accuracy and validation of the transmitted copy, and a business model algorithm for electronic verification and execution of documents by a multiplicity of parties located at different locations from each other and from the location of the document.